With an eminent academic and political commentator such as Prof. Bimal Shankar Nanda as an invited resource person in the panel, the students of the department were provided with a unique opportunity of sharing their perspectives on issues of political, economic and social relevance. Many students from the department listened to the various topics that were being deliberated upon by the esteemed resource persons and also raised some interesting questions. Timely discussions on international law and international relations encouraged the students of the department to learn more about the subject as was witnessed in subsequent classes following their discussions during the seminar.
